A few quick facts about me:

I am British-born, but technically Cornish, as I grew up in Newquay, a small surf town on Cornwall's beautiful southwest coast.

I'm passionate about photography and film, and a desire to learn everything about my industry is what led me to become a producer.

I enjoy organising, being challenged, and the process of breaking down a creative brief, and rebuilding it piece by piece, producing a tangible, three-dimensional result.

I care about collaborating effectively with both client and creative, and do so using diplomacy, honesty and communication. Communication is key!

I care about each client's happiness as much as I care about every production's outcome.

I offer all aspects of production for print commercial, advertising and editorial shoots to live action video, from the West Coast to the East Coast and everywhere in between.

Whether it's a small or large production, I will be with you every step of the way, from creative inception to project completion.
